AUSTRIANS CLASH WITH ITALIANS

ROME, May 17.—Despite the official denial that the German and Austrian ambassadors had asked for their passports, the Messagaro announced today that two special trains had been made up and held in readiness for Prince von Buelow and Baron von Macchio.

ROME, May 17.—A border clash between Italian and Austrian troops was reported today from Sogna. A company of Austrian soldiers crossed the frontier and were engaged by Italian troops, who were rushed to the scene. After an exchange of rifle fire the Italians charged and drove the Austrians back. One prisoner was captured.

Military preparations continue without cessation. Trains laden with troops and war materials are constantly departing for the Tyrol frontier. The number of soldiers already mobilized is estimated at 1,700,000.

LAST PHOTOGRAPH OF LUSITANIA AT SEA

©BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Picture shows the S. S. Lusitania being held up by an armed British merchant cruiser on the trip which ended in the liner's destruction. The photograph, which was taken from the deck of the cruiser, shows a boat putting off to the Lusitania with instructions on how best to avoid enemy submarines.

Sox and Braves Games Postponed

The rain today caused a postponement of both the Red Sox game at Cleveland and the second battle of the series between the Braves and Pirates.

The Pirates are here for two more days and unless something interferes there will be games at Fenway Park Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday the Chicago Cubs, under the management of Roger Bresnahan, will appear on the scene for a series of four games.

TRANSYLVANIA PASSENGERS ARE FORWARDED BY RAIL

By International News Service.

LONDON, May 17.—The Transylvania, which sailed from New York ten days ago with more than 800 passengers, including several Americans, has evaded the German submarines.

With her lifeboats swung out for instant use, and all lights extinguished, the liner, bearing a heavy cargo of war supplies for the allies and many passengers, crept into port at Greenock, Scotland, at 3 o'clock this morning.

The passengers, all of whom were well, were landed at once, and those going to points to England left by train for Liverpool.

Later the Transylvania left for Glasgow, her home port.

Greenock is twenty miles northwest from Glasgow, just south of the Firth of Clyde.

Passengers on the Transylvania said that every possible precaution had been taken against German submarines, but despite these preparations there was considerable nervousness on board during the passage through the war zone waters, as a result of the sinking of the Lusitania.

The Transylvania was many hours late in reaching port and this caused great anxiety here, but the fears for her safety were removed by the Cunard announcement. The liner avoided the water where the Lusitania met her fate, and took the course to the north of Ireland.

Reported Karlsruhe Was Off Norfolk, a V.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., May 17.—Residents of Newport News, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort were excited today by reports that the German cruiser Karlsruhe was coming into port to join the interned auxiliary cruisers Kronprinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

The reports were spread by a pilot who stated, when he came ashore, that the Karlsruhe was waiting just beyond the capes for a pilot to bring her in.

Later it was found there was no truth in the reports.

Mrs. Henry Clarke Coe, Jr., will sail for Europe on a special steamer to-day to visit her husband's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Clarke Coe, of Allen Avenue, Mrs. Coe's mother said today that nothing had been heard from young Coe. ## Save Woman and 5 Men from Launch

NEWBURYPORT, May 17.—A woman and five men were rescued in a 16-foot launch, the Pera, on a natural breakwater on the Merrimac River, opposite Woodbridge Island, with a hole three in the bottom of the launch, were rescued by the crew of the life-saving station on Plum Island at 11 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Pomeroy was the only one to give her name.

REFUSAL BY KAISER EXPECTED

BERLIN, via London, May 17.—Germany's answer to the American note of protest against attacks by submarines on British ships carrying non-belligerent passengers probably will not be ready before Tuesday or Wednesday. The character of the reply will be decided on at a government council to be held meantime.

While the friendly tone of the American note has made a profound impression, it may be stated, after sounding official temper and observing the attitude of the press and people that Germany will not swerve from its policy of submarine warfare against England.

This, it may be said with assurance, will be the message conveyed to Washington couched in terms just as polite and equally as friendly as those employed by the head of the American nation.

It will be made plain that Germany must deny America's wish not because of any indifference to America, but because Germany is fighting for her very existence and that existence depends on the sea at least, on her submarines and their ability to whittle down the preponderance of British naval strength which England is using in an attempt to starve the nation.

BELIEVE U. S. WILL OPPOSE ARBITRATION

TRANSYLVANIA IS SAFE IN PORT

The Greenock dispatch does not state whether or not she sighted any submarines. While hostile submarines have been reported by British captains at intervals off the north coast of Ireland, they have been less frequently reported there than in the more accessible waters to the south.

The Transylvania was scheduled to go first to Liverpool. Additional ground for anxiety was recognized when it became known she was overdue at that port.

The announcement of the Transylvania's arrival at Greenock, showing how he had foiled possible attack, caused a feeling of relief.

Seldom has such great public interest been shown as in the fate of the big liner. In the streets and all public places it has been the engrossing subject of conversation. Her course has been traced and news expectantly awaited.

Throughout the past forty-

NEARLY 2,000,000 ITALIAN SOLDIERS READY FOR WAR

It is learned that the Cabinet, before separating, voted a further credit of $20,000,000 for immediate military and naval necessities.

The newspapers today are unanimous in predicting a decisive move forthwith.

While the official announcement of the retention of Premier Salandra at the head of the cabinet ended most of the war talk throughout Italy, there were many demonstrations of rejoicing today. These were particularly impressive at Milan, Florence, Naples, Messina, Bologna, Palermo and Catania.

It is reported that Baron Macchi, the Austrian ambassador, has asked the Foreign Office if the King's request to Premier Salandra was to be interpreted to mean that Italy had decided upon war.

At Trieste there have been serious disorders. The scarcity of bread and the high price of living caused a tragic outbreak. A thousand women assembled in the public square and attempted to invade the Governor's residence, crying "Death to Franz Joseph." They tore up the Austrian flag and pictures of the Emperor.

Finally the police were forced to charge and forty-seven women are reported killed and 300 wounded.

In Rome the Marchioness Deviti Demarco, formerly Etta Durham of Boston, wife of Deputy Demarco, is taking a prominent part in the pro-war demonstrations. Yesterday the Marchioness began a tour of the city distributing to soldiers guarding the streets, cigars, cigarettes and oranges. The Marchioness' car, which was bedecked with American and Italian flags, was cheered.

CHEERED BY 50,000.

Though King Victor Emmanuel has refused to accept the resignation of the Salandra Cabinet, the parliamentary situation remains as obscure as that relating to international affairs. The Giolittian and Clerical parties are maintaining silence, which is inexplicable at this time. Few believe they have been converted to war, but none attempt to guess what their next move will be.

According to the Tribuna the reopening of Parliament will again be postponed for several days because of unexpected "complications of a most serious nature."

A wave of patriotic enthusiasm swept over Rome when the official announcement was made that Premier Salandra and his Cabinet would vacate their posts.

Fifty thousand men and women joined in a mass meeting in Populo square, where every reference to the King or to Salandra and to war was received with cheers. When the meeting adjourned an attempt was made to march to the Quirinal, but troops frustrated this plan because of the fact that the Austrian Embassy was on the route the crowd wished to follow.

Bitter controversy continues between the interventionist and neutralist organs over reports and denials that the Triple Alliance pact was declared null and void on May 4. Senator Frassati, editor of the Turin Stampa, a Giolittian organ, declares it is "impossible of belief" that Foreign Minister Sonnino was capable of such a breach of diplomatic etiquette as to pledge Italy's support to the allies before abrogating the treaty with Austria and Germany.

The Tribuna takes the same attitude, declaring that if there is any accord with the allies at present Sonnino is alone responsible.

AUSTRIAN OVERTURES TO ITALY

Diplomat Tells of Proposals and Counter Proposals by Two Powers.

By DR. E. J. DILLON,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, May 17.—I have just had an important interview with a personage whose name I am not at liberty to mention but nobody is better acquainted than he is with the course of the conversations between Rome and Vienna, with the issues of both governments, with the motives which underly every act and word of the Salandra cabinet and with the causes of the present crisis.

I therefore can vouch for the absolute correctness of each and every one of the following statements which will be supported by official information that will be given to the world later.

The first question I put to the eminent personage was: "What are the real reasons for the resignation of the Salandra Ministry?"

His answer was couched approximately in the following words:

"The cabinet resigned not because of discord between the ministers and the monarch. There is no divergence of any kind between the ministers, who are acting in behalf of the King and council and the sovereign, who was continuously informed of the tenor and trend of negotiations from start to finish.

"Perfect harmony prevailed between the officers of State responsible to powers. No jarring note ever once disturbed it. That was an indispensable condition of the fulfilment of the delicate mission imposed upon the cabinet, and it was realized. But it was not the only condition.

"In virtue of the constitution the cabinet also was obliged to meet Parliament. This duty, together with everything it implies, however, passes on the least disputable in the relations.

"They were conscious not only that they had exerted unflinchingly to the best of their powers furthering the economic interests and the maintenance of its dignity, but also they were in possession of documentary evidence, voluminous and conclusive enough to convince all minds accessible and susceptible to the force of facts, and it was assumed that the parliamentary majority, whatever its views of internal politics might be, was thus open to conviction and ready to judge and decide the international problem on its merits and without reference to extrinsic and wholly irrelevant consideration.

GIOLITTI'S ENTRY.

"That much was assumed because on the correctness of this belief depended the vital interests of the country, which might easily be impaired if other attitude was assumed by the nation's representatives.

"Signor Giolitti's entry on the scene and the part he played there greatly disabused the cabinet, for it created a situation which being not merely anti-governmental, but also anti-constitutional, could not be accepted by the ministers as authorize to act for the country vested on a constitutional basis.

"It has been pleaded Giolitti held no assemblies. This fact is true, but it is also irrevelant, for in other events no difficulties ways he induced his parliamentary supporters to publicly manifest their adhesion to this view, namely, that an accord with Austria was still possible, although the Salandra cabinet was in possession of conclusive proofs that it was neither conducive to Italy's interests nor compatible with Italy's honor.

"The consequence of these tactics would be certitude on the part of the cabinet that on the meeting of Parliament it would be confronted by a hostile majority no longer accessible to any argument and absolutely pledged to opposition.

ACCORD WITH AUSTRIA.

"It would have been a sheer loss of the country's time, now that every day counts, to delay before the group of deputies, whose vote was therefore an official expose which would and will convince every unprejudiced Italian that his patriotism, honor and interests forbade and forbid an accord with Austria.

"For thus deliberately thwarting the work undertaken by the cabinet in the name and in behest of the King and nation Signor Giolitti's responsibility is tremendous.

Here I put the following question:

"Possibly Giolitti was misinformed about Austria's efforts and in any case he could hardly have been aware of any engagements assumed by Italy that would stand in the way of further negotiations. Is not that the ground that may be pleaded by his friends in extenuation of what would otherwise wear the appearance of an act of unfriendliness to his own country?"

This was the answer:

"Giolitti was well aware of all decisive data when taking up his attitude of opposition in the cabinet, and the data were these: Italy's conversations with Austria and Germany date, not as the public supposed from Prince Von Bulow's arrival in Rome, but almost from the outbreak of the European war. Consequently there was ample time for those countries to let us know what compensation they were prepared to make, but Austria was indisposed to make any concessions and she persisted in that mood, hardly modifying it to any noteworthy extent down to the very end.

"TERMS DERISIVE."

"And even when she at last braced herself to effect terms, she proffered not merely inadequate but derisive terms.

"The impression left by the stubbornness in the Italian cabinet was profound. After it had waited long and patiently for signs of a more businesslike disposition and waited in vain, the ministers began to consider the eventuality of war against Austria and put spirit, energy and speed into the preparations, military and naval.

"The significance of these measures, which were well known in Berlin and Vienna, was interpreted everywhere aright for they were adopted openly, without any mystery or attempt at concealment.

"Then it is that the governments of the two empires might have weighed the considerations which will militated in favor of an acceptable settlement of the differences which separated Austria from Italy, but our military and naval preparations had no such effect. Austria disbelieved their seriousness and set them down as a bluff.

"She still persisted in refusal to make us any acceptable offer or even anything approaching a reasonable basis of fruitful negotiations, yet our national defences were nearly finished and time was passing.

"This deadlock continued until close to the end of April. For the Italian government this date appeared the latest moment for bringing the conversations to a definite issue in one sense or the other and Baron Sonnino, exerting himself to the utmost, urged the Vienna cabinet to come at last to the point and clearly set forth the most favorable terms it was prepared to offer it.

"AUSTRIA INTOLERABLE."

"That was the final question put by Sonnino with this emphasis and turning upon demands the most moderate that could possibly satisfy the aspiration of the country which was willing to settle old scores. It elicited no favorable response. Austria was inexorable. She had uttered the last word, had promised the utmost she was prepared to concede and declared in unmistakable terms her resolve to abide by them.

"He continued: "Then only did we proceed to take the significant step of denouncing the Triple Alliance. This act put an end to the close relations which so long had subsisted between Italy and the central empires.

"It was only after these two important elements had entered into the problem, namely, Austria's definite refusal to make any acceptable concessions and our denunciation of the treaty, that the cabinet of Rome pushed forward our conversations with the Entente powers with a view to safeguard against the isolation of Italy.

TURNED TO ALLIES.

"There is no truth in the allegation that the cabinet entered into both groups of belligerents at the same time. So long as our ministers were in treaty with Austria they were perfectly free to come to an agreement with her if she was prepared to meet them on the ground on which Italy's vital and essential dignity and interests would be safeguarded. It was only when all hope of this consummation vanished by Austria, after many months of discussion, that the Cabinet turned to the allied powers with the view of striking an agreement with them.

"It was owing to these negotiations, to the obligations they imposed and the situation they created that neither His Majesty nor his ministers repaired to the Garibaldian festivities at Quarto. The Cabinet expected then at any moment war might be declared against Italy by her two allies.

"It is evident that only when Italy was at perfect liberty in every sense to treat with the entente powers that Sonnino returned to the binding accord with them in the interests of the nation. The formal binding compact marked the end of all negotiations with Austria and it was only when Germany got wind of this decisive event, which threw us into the arms of her adversaries, that she bestirred herself and roused her ally to make belated advances, and this information spurred the diplomatists at those two capitals to make an experiment which need not be qualified in words.

MINISTER LAUDS VAR-NE-SIS

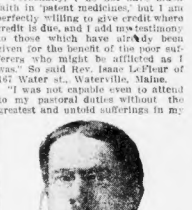
Says Rheumatic Neuritis Yielded Quickly to Simple Remedy.



"Personally, I do not have much faith in 'patent medicines,' but I am perfectly willing to give credit where credit is due, and I add my testimony to those which have already been given for the benefit of the poor sufferers who might be afflicted as I was." So said Rev. Isaac Le Fleur of 167 Water st., Waterville, Maine.

"I was not capable even to attend to my pastoral duties without the greatest and untold sufferings in my body. The rheumatism was intrenched in my left leg, yet the pains were so great that my whole body seemed paralyzed; for several days I suffered so that it seemed as though thousands of pins had been stuck in my whole body at once. It would take me three five or ten minutes to find a comfortable position for my foot, then I would rest for a little; but the pains would return with a double force.

"I could not walk without assistance, but by using my cane I could get along with difficulty.

"By continuing Var-ne-sis the pain gradually left me and I have never had one symptom of the disease to return after eight years."

Var-ne-sis is a vegetable remedy that has been remarkably successful in chronic cases of rheumatism, particularly in those neuritic cases that have been treated with the ordinary remedies month after month without results.

No rheumatic sufferer can afford to ignore Var-ne-sis. On exhibition at the Boston office, 149 Boylston st., are cruthes, canes, photographs, wheel chairs, letters, etc., obtained from sufferers that have recovered through Var-ne-sis. Also a bond that there was no help for them. $1,000 is offered if the testimonials are not genuine or that they have been purchased.

Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the newspaper devoted to rheumatism. It should be in the hands of every sufferer. A registered physician may be consulted at the Boston office free of charge. # THRONGS CHEER PRESIDENT, WHO REVIEWS BIG FLEET IN NEW YORK

By A. M. JAMIESON,

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Frequent showers, lowering skies and chill breezes furnished an unpleasant setting today for President Wilson's visit to New York and his inspection of $300,000,000 worth of warships assembled in the Hudson river. Nevertheless the city gave itself up wholeheartedly to welcoming the distinguished guest and cheering him upon his arrival to review the great fleet.

The review took on added significance because of the uncertainty shrouding the international situation at the present time.

Elaborate precautions were taken to guard the President today. All the available detectives of the city, about 600, were summoned to headquarters today and assigned to duty in connection with the land parade.

BIG DETECTIVE GUARD.

Scores of detectives and secret service men were detailed for duty about the reviewing stand in front of the Public Library in Fifth avenue. Admission to that part of the grandstand adjoining the President's place of honor was limited to persons known to Police Commissioner Woods and Detective Chief Flynn. Only persons with special tickets were entitled to entrance to the smaller stand opposite the President.

The Mayflower, with the President on board, dropped anchor off Thirty-second street, in North river, at 8 o'clock. President Wilson remained on board until about 9.30, when he came ashore.

As soon as the Mayflower arrived in port a wireless message was sent to Secretary of the Navy Daniels on board the Dolphin and greetings to the chief executive were then flashed from every warship in the line.

It was not until the Mayflower reached this port that it became known that she had been convoyed all the way up the coast from Hampton Roads by the United States cruiser Baltimore.

MARINES REVIEWED.

President Wilson was accompanied by Acting Mayor McAneny, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Vice Admiral Fletcher, chairman of the welcoming committee, and a number of other officials as he drove to the reviewing stand.

The President looked as though his sea trip had done him good and he was apparently unconscious of the widespread precautions taken to guard him. Thousands of spectators, who braved the blustery weather, cheered the Chief Executive who acknowledged their salutes and smiled at the cordial greeting.

After the presidential party had reached the reviewing stand Police Inspector Schmittberger ordered all the woodwork of the President's box cut away so as to give a clear view to the men entrusted with his safety.

With blaring trumpets and brass bands that crashed out stirring martial music, 5000 bluejackets, marines and members of the naval militia paraded before the President.

THOUSANDS CHEER.

Rear Admiral Dewitt Coffman of the Virginia was in charge of the four regiments of sailors and one regiment of marines, leading the procession on battleship. When passing the reviewing stand the bands played "The Star Spangled Banner" and the cheers of the thousands of spectators were so vociferous that they rattled the windows of the buildings. Among the enormous crowd were tens of thousands of women whose finery was spoiled by the rain.

When the parade had passed President Wilson was driven to the Biltmore Hotel, the scene of the official luncheon.

On the trip to New York all the members of the presidential party became seasick, especially Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's secretary, who established the record of being the "sickest man ever seen on the Mayflower."

PROGRAM OF GREAT FLEET REVIEW TODAY

9 a. m.—Naval brigade lands at West Twenty-third street.

10 a. m.—Parade starts.

10:30 a. m.—Head of parade passes official reviewing stand.

12 m.—Rikards embarks at West Seventy-ninth street.

7:30 p. m.—President dines on board Wyoming.

PRESENT HARVARD PLAY TOMORROW

The Granville Barker Company, which is to produce the Gilbert Murray translations of Euripedes' "Iphigenia" and "The Trojan Women" at the Harvard Stadium on tomorrow and Wednesday, broke camp after its performance in the Yale Bowl and headed directly for Cambridge. Mr. Barker was especially anxious to bring his company over here at once, because conditions in Cambridge would be altogether different from those in New Haven, and because the second of the two plays, "The Trojan Women" had not been given here.

On their arrival here Mr. and Mrs. Barker (Lillah MacCarthy is Mrs. Barker) disappeared in an automobile to enjoy a little rest at the home of their friend, Winthrop Ames, the producer, who has a Summer place in North Easton.

Claude Rains is stage manager.

DELAY TRIAL OF MRS. WALTERS IN POISONING CASE

Mrs. Ida Sniffen Walters and "Baby John," one of her two children poisoned when she sought death in the belief that she was losing her place as the "love wife" of Lorlyn Elton Rogers.

NEW YORK, May 17.—The trial of Mrs. Ida Sniffen Walters on the charge of having killed her two children, John and Lorida, was today put over until the October term of court. The adjournment was granted on the request of District Attorney Morton, who stated that the jurors would be influenced by the woman's physical condition if the trial was to take place now.

In the meantime Mrs. Walters will be allowed her liberty on $7,500 bail.

The principal witness for the defense is expected to be Rogers, under indictment for violation of a state statute, blake lask, the father of Mrs. Walters' children. He has announced that he will marry Mrs. Walters as soon as the final decree is signed in the divorce libel of his wife, now pending suit after the bravely made public the story of Rogers' relations with Mrs. Walters.

Mrs. Walters has occupied a cell on the ground floor of the Bronx county court house since her removal from the efforts of the coroner's physicians. She took herself. # AUSTRIAN ROUT IN BUKOWINA

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, May 17.—Russian victory for the Russians in the eastern Galicia and Bukowina announced by the War office in an official statement issued today.

The Austrians have been driven along the entire front, a distance of 100 miles, it states. Thousands have been taken prisoners.

For ten days there has been severe fighting along the Dniester river, where the Russians have been pressing the Austrian right wing in an effort to checking its attempts to advance and strike at the lines of communication upon which the Russians depend for the supplies and reinforcements for the troops who have been withdrawing from the Carpathian line and in western Galicia.

The Austrians have been driven from their positions along the south bank of the Dniester River and have been compelled to cross the Pruth at Nowosena, twenty-two miles south of Stanislau, has been completed by the Russians.

This is the first time Nowosena has changed hands.

On the river Pruth the Russians have occupied Mikolin, twenty miles northeast of Czernowitz. The Russians are wheeling their artillery into new ones more to the Austrian rear.

In northern Poland the fighting is progressing favorably to the Russians. Today's official statement reports the repulse of a German column in the Shavli region.

In their excitement they forgot Lillian Markofsky, nine. The child tried to make her way down the rear stairs, but was forced back by the smoke and taken down a ladder.

Four others appeared at a window and Miss Nora Lenzi and three blameless children, Walter, nine, John, six, and Thomas, thirteen, were taken down.

Detective Foils Captors, Saves Heroine, in "Elaine"

In the previous part of the same episode of the Exploits of Elaine we saw that fire could become a destroying agent. In the second part it plays a saving one.

Craig Kennedy, lured to Chinatown by a ruse of Elaine, is trapped and imprisoned.

"I left your Elaine fastened to a desert chair in the attic," gloated the man in the Panama hat. "In just twenty minutes the flames will have driven away from the phosphorus fumes and Elaine and girl in it will be burning behind a locked door."

They left him alone. He extricated himself of the patent cigar lighter in his pocket. Pressing his bound arm against it he contrived to ignite the rope that bound him.

When the little tongue of flame had eaten its way through the rope he crept out of the room and made his frantic way to the Dodge home.

Flames and smoke were bursting from the attic windows. He arrived in time to drag the fainting Elaine from the chair of death.

Elaine, My Moving Picture Queen," is the title of a delightful new song just put on the market. Already it is being sung all over the country. It may be purchased at any music store, or a copy will be mailed postpaid by sending six two-cent stamps to The Star Company, P. O. Box 1749, New York City.

SUNDAY ON FINAL WEEK IN PATERSON

PATERSON, N. J., May 17.—The last fully Sunday is on the final week of his several meetings here. Plans have been announced for a demonstration to be accorded him next Sunday afternoon. The whole city plans to turn out. Men of the various churches, from the shops and the mills, from the clubs and stores, will join in a parade. Groups of mechanics are planning to erect a huge "temperance engine," which will be pulled through the streets by four brewers' horses.

This afternoon, Sunday will don a baseball uniform once more to play his old position of right field on a team of ministers who will line up against the newspaper men in a charity baseball game.

His Sabbath sermon was his famous one on "Booze." Converts for the day totalled 1,348, with a grand total of 19,342. The grand total of collections for campaign expenses, complete, is $51,487.22; collections for charity to date are $6,358.90.

"Oh, God, how I hate the booze business!" shouted Sunday. "Every morning I ask God to make me hate it more. His curse is on the saloon The liquor men are after me, but I defy the bunch to come on.

MAYOR OPPOSES WALSH TAX PLAN

Mayor Curley opposes Governor Walsh's bill to provide for the retention by the commonwealth of the corporation franchise tax on railroad, telegraph and telephone companies, which now, although collected by the commonwealth, is distributed among the cities and towns as proportioned to the amount of shares held by citizens of such communities.

Under the Governor's bill, says the Mayor, Boston would lose approximately $250,000.

"The only justification for the transfer that can be conceived is that the commonwealth is more economical in expenditure," the Mayor says, and then proceeds to show by statistics that the State for the last decade has piled up a greater increase in debt, expenditures and tax rate than the largest city in the commonwealth. According to his figures, the net debt of the State has increased 55.8 per cent., expenditures for general purposes 97.5 per cent., and the tax levy 229 per cent., since 1904 against Boston's increase of 26.4 per cent. in net debt, or only 11.4 per cent. If the transit loans, which are self-supporting, are excluded; Boston's increase in regular departmental expenses of 26.8 per cent. and Boston's tax rate increase of 13.1 per cent. (including State tax), all in the same period.

"FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U.S.A." NO. 7

Thomas Jefferson "Father of the Declaration of Independence"

THIS noble founder of the Democratic Party immortalized himself by writing our Declaration of Independence—the document which laid the foundations of Free Government, not only for our own beloved land, but for all the world. His countrymen twice elected him President and will always treasure his memory. Jefferson was the most ardent advocate of Universal Freedom of his time and it was his wisdom and foresight which brought about the Louisiana Purchase. Every drop of his Virginia blood loved Liberty, and because he wanted Americans to be assured of it for all time he championed with all his might and main the signing of the Constitution of the United States. None of the fathers of the Republic were more far-seeing than he and none knew better than he that a mild brew of barley-malt and hops is truly a temperance drink. Hence, in 1816, he wrote President Madison: "A Captain Miller is about to settle in this country and establish a brewery. I wish to see this beverage become common." Jefferson lived past his 83d year and all his life he was a moderate user of light wines and barley brews. It is unimaginable that were he alive to-day he would vote otherwise than NO to proposed tyrannous prohibition laws. For 58 years Anheuser-Busch have been brewing the kind of honest barley and hop brews which Jefferson hoped in his day to see the National beverage of Americans. Exactly such a beer is BUDWEISER. Its quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor have won its way to the top. To-day 7500 people are daily required to meet the public demand. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

LOCAL PEOPLE ARE SINGING PRAISES

Well Known Boston Man Relates Interesting Story to His Friends.

The benefits of good health are obvious to all. The value of a sound mind in a sound body needs no interpretation to people of education and understanding. It is only necessary to show them how this healthy condition may be obtained and preserved. No extravagant claims are made for Plant Juice.

the new herbal system tonic now being introduced here, but that it will prove a boon to men in a run down state of health, if suffering from constipation, liver trouble or rheumatism is backed up by statements from local people in full, testimonials who have used the preparation and are now loud in its praise themself.

To illustrate the statement that Mr. J. T. Baker, who lives at 56 Bellevue st., Roxbury, and is employed as accountant in Mr. Baker's business in Boston for the past seven years, had a very severe case of rheumatism, which for a time threatened to hamper his business activities. He said: "I had been hearing a great deal about Plant Juice and how it had helped other sufferers from rheumatic trouble, that I decided to try it myself. I have been a rheumatic sufferer for a number of years. It took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia and I did not feel well.

I also was very nervous, which I attributed to the stomach trouble. I did not enjoy my meals, as there was always a bad taste in my mouth in the morning. I have been taking Plant Juice for about one week and I am certainly feeling about 50 per cent better in health so far. When I get up in the morning I feel fine. I rest well at night and my appetite seems to agree with me since using Plant Juice."

Plant Juice may be at Higgett's Drug Co.'s store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and gives and explains the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

TRY IN SENATE TO AMEND 'BIRTH OF A NATION' BILL

An effort will be made today in the Senate to amend the so-called "Birth of a Nation" bill, which comes up to be engrossed, so that two of the three local censors of photoplays and public entertainments may suspend an objectionable performance instead of having the judgment of the triumvirate unanimous.

The bill enlarges the present statute by adding the chief justice of the Boston Municipal Court as a censor with the Mayor and police commissioner. But it eliminates specific causes, such as "obscene" and "immoral," and permits the three officials to object to a show on any ground.

That is an arbitrary power at first objected to by the rank and file of motion picture men, but within the past few days the film forces have changed their attitude toward the measure, which they wish to remind the public applies only to Boston.

TRIUMVIRATE SAFER.

Film distributors and exhibitors now consider that the "three-headed" bill is safer than the present law, in that all the Boston officials would have to agree before they stopped a show or suspended a license.

On that account the attempt to remove the unanimous clause will be opposed with spirit. Motion picture men claim the bill was not necessary. The majority object to "excess legislation," but they are far more interested in State censorship than in a law that affects Boston only and has to do solely with the right of local officials to revoke the licenses of theatres that persist in producing improper shows. The only interests anxious for the success of this bill are "The Birth of a Nation" lobbyists, hence its title.

The Judiciary Committee reported the bill and it was railroaded through the House and Senate to a third reading. Many appear to have confused the proposed local law with the grist of censorship bills and amendments before the Senate Committee on Ways and Means. They are distinct. The film distributors and exhibitors throughout Massachusetts are seeking satisfactory censorship regulations and had been for months before the photo-play at the Tremont stirred the case.

The tumult over the scenes of the Reconstruction period befogged the issues and delayed the needs of the film industry in this State. But the horizon has at last cleared and the antis and motion picture men are not so estranged. The only feature they differ on now is the right to censor films before they have been displayed at least once to the public.

MILLER BILL SANE.

The film men say citizens ought to object first and then a proper hearing can be held, but that prior censorship would stifle the industry and reject many worthy and harmless pictures. The antis say damage will be done by a single picture display of a film with improper suggestions.

The censorship bills and amendments with which the Senate Ways and Means Committee has been deluged have been obscured by the sane and liberal measure submitted by Hiram F. Miller of Lynn. This bill provides for the appointment by Governor Walsh of seven men and two women to serve without pay and to be known as the Board of Rules and Appeal for Film Examination. Three members are to serve for one year, three for two years and three for three years, the only paid attache to be his secretary.

Motion picture men all over the State are backing the Miller measure with an enthusiasm inspired by the weary weeks of conflict and confusion. They look upon it as a beacon. They say it solves all the problems in a manner satisfactory to the public, to the antis and to the film forces.

Zeppelins in New Air Raid On England

By JOHN C. FOSTER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, May 17.—The Zeppelin airship which bombarded Ramsgate early today was chased all the way across the North Sea to the Belgian coast by swift British aeroplanes, it was announced by the Admiralty this afternoon. That more damage was not done by the German raiders was due to the vigilance of the British aerial patrols. Near West Hinder lightship, where the Zeppelin got within range of the German guns, the chase was discontinued.

One death will probably result from the latest German air raid, the fifteenth to be made on the east coast of England. At Ramsgate, sixty-seven miles east of London, where between fifteen and twenty bombs were dropped, the Bull and George Hotel was partly destroyed by a missile which fell on the roof. All the windows of the building were shattered and a woman seriously injured. Three other persons were struck by flying debris.

Several aircraft were observed at Dover approaching the harbor, but high anti-aircraft guns were fired at the hostile visitors and they turned and fled out to sea.

It was reported from both Deal and Margate that Zeppelins had been seen.

It was first believed that only one Zeppelin had taken part in the aerial foray, and that if not intended for scouting purposes, but as reports continued to arrive from various cities, the belief was conceived that two or more airships had participated.

A dispatch to the Star from Deal said that an incendiary bomb was dropped on Deal. Bombs were also dropped upon a fishing fleet off Ramsgate and three boats were damaged.

It is believed by Admiralty officials that a German Zeppelin was damaged off Sleuport. The following statement was given out:

"The Zeppelin which attacked Ramsgate was chased as far west as Hinder Lightship. Off Sleuport it was attacked by eight naval machines from Dunkirk. Bombs were thrown at the airship and it was apparently damaged, as smoke was seen."

Joint Rates Granted to a Lynn Express

A dispatch from Washington today said that Stone's Express, Incorporated, of Lynn, had won its petition to be entitled to participate in through routes and joint rates with railroads out of Boston.

Stone's Express operates one car and two barges between Lynn and Boston. A hearing on the application was given in December in Boston before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Clarence A. Becker of Billerica is president of the company; J. T. O'Riordan of Boston is treasurer, and C. W. Stone of Lynn is general manager.

PEACE WITHOUT HONOR OPPOSED BY PRINCESS

Princess Pierre Troubetzkoy, who defends war with honor rather than peace with dishonor.

NEW YORK, May 17.—"Peace at the price of the highest ideals, at the cost of humanity and civilization, is base compared to a war that strives to maintain them.

"It is maternity in the women of America which swells into a vast and noble passion for redress when they picture that sunny day of May 8, and those mothers and children struggling in the pitiless water.

"The cry of a mother for justice is a great cry!

"If war is hell, an ignominious and self-centred peace is hell!

"The whole matter amounts to this in the end: Has America viscera, or has she not viscera?"

It is interesting to compare his opinions and statements of the women who remain in this country with their minds firmly made up to either face peace or war, with the statements and work of members of the Women's Peace Party, who recently went to Europe in the interests of establishing peace. Those who have gone believe in peace at any cost, questioning those here there is a wide divergence of opinion.

One of the most interesting commentaries on the nation's policy and President Wilson's message to Berlin comes from the Princess Pierre Troubetzkoy, who has in a quite fearless manner expressed her views which are of a decidedly different tenor from those which many other women have given.

"Our country is at one of the gravest crises that its history has known, and to what I am about to say I am sure that I shall express the feeling of thousands of American women," said the Princess.

"In this crisis we are looking to our government with a profound and anxious eagerness, and the desire of our whole being is that our government shall act in accordance with the ideals for which America has ever stood as a great symbol.

"The President must feel as David felt when he appointed in Mizeh: 'I am for peace, but when I speak they are for war.' Yet no sane and balanced mind can be for war save as the last resource of righteousness and integrity.

"To an ignoble peace, a noble war is always preferable. There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight!—In his sole defense, but I hardly think that any man would be too proud to fight in the defense of others committed to his care. It is hard to conceive of a man whose pride would keep him from fighting if his mother were insulted or helpless fellow beings attacked in his presence. The Saviour of Mankind allowed Himself to be scourged with nakedness, and for the wrongs of others He Himself scourged the evildoers from the Temple.

REPORT REFUSAL BY THE KAISER

proval of President Wilson and his advisers.

The belief is general among official and diplomatic circles here that will not agree to cease the submarine warfare against noncombatants unless it will urge that a "reasonable period to fight" should find a day to prevent the formation of arms and ammunition for the use of the enemy. Not many is expected the decision will be stated in the near future and should be stated at once.

The belief that a suggestion of arbitration will be made by the German government is based on the attitude taken by President Wilson in the discussion of the Lusitania case. In that case the President declared that the settlement in the Lusitania case, in which the submarine whose methods the President has so vigorously denounced, caused the destruction.

According to the view of many of officials the suggestion of arbitration has been put forward in the case of the Lusitania to call the attention of the United States while Germany is devoting the chief features of her navy.

Accordingly officials here looked with keen interest for the report of Ambassador Gerard at Berlin as to the probable attitude of the German government.

Official notifications reached the State Department today that the Swedish steamship Hallaren, recently delivered to the German Foreign office Saturday at Stockholm by a representative Gerard cabled that he had presented the note in person.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED BY FRENCH ON LORETTE HEIGHTS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, May 17.—Violent attacks launched by the Germans in an effort to win back ground lost to the French on the heights of Lorette in northern France have been repulsed, it is announced in an official communique issued by the French war office today.

The capture of 145 prisoners and four mitrailleuses at bet Sas, West Flanders, is also announced.

The accompanying official text and fighting is still in progress upon the battlefield north of Arras and to the sector of Ypres.

The text of the communique follows:

"In the region of Het Sas our progress has continued. We captured yesterday a farm strongly fortified by the enemy and passed on the east both of the canal. The total is now five, taking 145 prisoners and four mitrailleuses. A counter attack by infantry was completely checked.

"There is nothing new to the north of Arras, in the night the Germans began to fall except in extremely violent artillery battle in the region of Lorette and a bloody check inflicted in that same region to four counter attacks by the Germans, who suffered heavy losses. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report.

"In the Vosges, on Hartz, the Germans, doubtless with the intention of making a diversion upon our additional pieces before our lines a green Turkish flag bearing the crescent. Our African troops immediately responded to that provocation by shelling both the flag. A skirmisher immediately set out to get it and brought it back to our lines."

Report Kaiser Favors World Disarmament

PARIS, May 17.—A German diplomat who had arrived at Berne has told Swiss officials that the Kaiser has recently declared he would propose a disarmament of the world. The Kaiser is reported to have said:

"From the outset my enemies have constantly asserted that their war aim was in saying this war is not to win but inasmuch as a commercial power and a great civilizing force, I am willing to make peace on that basis. Very well, it is a militarism—the armaments and the menace that the mere existence of his armaments constitute—that I will abolish. I will show that a way to get rid of not only European militarism but of every form of militarism at the same time.

"I must declare but as must then. What is called for now is not peace for itself. We will all disarm, and the second step no longer. We will have universal disarmament. I will propose to and then perhaps nations will join, one another more on the battlefield."

Wintergreen Kills a Cambridge Baby

Nineteen months old John McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCarthy, died at the Cambridge Relief Hospital today from drinking oil of wintergreen. Playing about the house at No. 3 Holly street, Cambridge, yesterday, the baby found and drained the bottle. The parents, not discovering the empty bottle, supposed the baby had stomach trouble and tried to relieve it. At length, at 5 o'clock this morning, the mother took the child in her arms and walked to the hospital, where the baby died shortly afterward. The empty wintergreen bottle was found today.

LISBON FALLS, ARRIAGA FLEES

LISBON, May 17.—The revolution has been completely successful. Fighting has ceased and the capital is resuming its normal aspect. The cabinet has been reconstructed under the premiership of Chaves, and today took action in consideration the matters of internal policy which have been a cause of contention for many months. The casualties of the revolution are estimated at twenty killed and 150 wounded, but reports that ex-Premier Costa had been assassinated are officially declared to be untrue.

MADRID, May 17.—The Portuguese government was taken over by the military today. President Arriaga has fled and the reins of power have been seized by Joa Chagas, who is reported to have proclaimed himself dictator.

The latest partisan, after a fierce show of resistance, has surrendered, and word has been sent to the headquarters of provincial revolutionaries who were marching upon the city to relieve Oporto has been intercepted by the gunboat Limpopo, whose crew mutinied and joined the rebels.

Premier Castro and former ex-Minister of Public Instruction Medeiros, who were taken prisoners when the government was overthrown, were removed from the military barracks today and placed in confinement on board the warship Vasco da Gama.

"The Rabbit's" Column

By Walter J. Maranville
SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

With the baseball season still in its infancy pitcher Kools of the Kalamazoo normal college holds what will likely be a record performance. He has pitched two no-hit games, the first against Albion College early in the Spring and the second against Hillsdale. The latter team scored one run on three errors.

Buffalo newspapers have published a rumor that unless the fans provide more liberal patronage the Federal League club of that city may be transferred to Cleveland or Toronto. It is hard to believe the Cleveland part of the rumor, as the Forest City already has two clubs, the Naps and the Indians, the latter playing in the American Association.

Organized Baseball seem have insisted for some time that the Feds would experience trouble in Buffalo, for the reason that the International League club there is owned by several leading citizens who are backing Pat Donovan to the limit. Down in Baltimore the newspapers who clamored for "big league baseball" last year are urging the fans to turn out in larger numbers in order to prevent the elimination of Baltimore from the baseball map.

One paper recently published an editorial setting forth the mistake of the baseball public in allowing Jack Dunn's International League club to be shifted to Richmond. Shrewd baseball politicians predicted a year ago that Buffalo and Baltimore would not prove to be major league cities.

Eastern time terms will govern Detroit baseball club announcements from now on. Sunday contests will be started at 2 o'clock. All week day games will be at 3:15 o'clock. This will include the Saturday battles. Cleveland, also on eastern time, has tried the 3:15 order and has found it satisfactory to the fans.

The Cincinnati Reds are well named this year. No less than seven red-headed players are on the list. Wilson, Dode Amee, Kilfifer, Mollwitz, Griffin and Lear have highly colored "thatches."

Arnold Hauser, formerly one of the stars of the St. Louis Cardinals and who has been an invalid since he was injured two years ago, is on the way to recovery. Hauser was one of the best shortstops in the National League until he may be entered the hospital. Since then he has led a melancholy existence up to several weeks ago.

* * *

Several times his life has been despaired of—and once or twice his reason. For a long period his mind was unbalanced, and he failed to recognize his friends. Last week he was the guest of honor at the annual dance of the city sanitarium in St. Louis, and was his former cheerful self again. Doctors hold out hope of his being able to play again in a year or so.

The "hidden ball trick," which started the trouble between Umpire Rigler and Manager Herzog, of Cincinnati, is seldom worked but when it is it usually arrives the player caught and his manager into a frenzy. With two coaches and his fellow players watching the course of the ball, it might be thought that it would be impossible for a runner to be caught on the ancient trick.

Nevertheless, even such a smart player as Tommy Leach "fell" for the play, and Umpire Hart, whose place it was to watch the ball, did not know what occurred. Umpire Rigler did so, and it was Charley's ruling that caused the rumpus. Herzog claiming that Rigler had no right to make the decision.

President Tener, of the National League, is against the "hidden ball trick."

"The hidden ball trick is unsportsmanlike," said President Tener, "but there is no way of preventing it, according to the rules, when the players do not keep awake. It is the duty of the umpire to watch the course of the ball. I have instructed them to look directly at the player who hides the ball.

"The man who is trying to work the trick may object, on the ground that the umpire is tipping off the runner or the coachers to what he is trying to do. Let the player kick. It will help to wipe out an unsportsmanlike play."

M'Namara Wins and Loses in Golf Matches

NEW YORK, May 17.—Tom McNamara, the Metropolitan open champion, won and lost in four-ball foursomes in which he played here, one on the links of the Flushing Country Club and the other over the Oakland Golf Club course. The match at Flushing was played in a drizzling rain. McNamara was paired with Willie Collins, the professional of the Oakland Club. They were opposed to Bert Battle, the professional of the Flushing club, and Gardiner W. White, the champion amateur of the club. Battle and White won by 3 up and 2 to play.

The two nines were played, Battle registering a one-stroke rounds of 76 each over the nine hole course. White took 79 and Collins and McNamara 78 each.

In the second match, McNamara had as his playing partner P. H. Moore, the chairman of the green committee of the Oakland Golf Club. They were opposed by Theodore Cassabeer and Collins. Moore and McNamara won by 4 and 3.

Cub's New Fielder the Fastest Runner

A new star has shot athwart the Chicago baseball horizon in the person of Outfielder Fred "Cy" Williams. This young man is a graduate of Notre Dame University and is said by many competent judge to be the fastest runner in the national game.

He would have gone to Stockholm, Sweden, and taken part in the Olympic games, when Jim Thorpe won so many honors, but declined on account of his studies. Williams holds the record for hurdling and if a contest is ever put on for circling the bases he will surely be hard to beat. The other day he scored from second base on the squeeze play.

Semi-Final Round in Tennis Play Today

Sid Thayer, captain of the Andover tennis team, who comes of a well-known family of tennis players, is for the second season runner up in the annual Harvard interscholastic tennis tournament. Thayer will meet the winner of the C. H. Beasley-R. Rand match this afternoon shortly after the semi-final lists settle their differences. F. Shiddy Marden, a freshman at Harvard, disposed of Thayer last year, being St. Mark's representative in the tournament. History may repeat itself with R. Rand winning his semi-final match, but Thayer waded through all his five matches Saturday, being called upon to extend himself set to three. Stearns School of Mt. Vernon, N. H., entered the Harvard tournament for the first time, Beasley, one of their two representatives playing in the semi-final today.

Linart to Start in Motor-Paced Battle

NEW YORK, May 17.—Although he is suffering from external injuries received in last Saturday's fall, Victor Linart, the Belgian pace follower, who was injured in Newark at pace ties, announced today that he would be in shape for next Saturday night's opening twenty-five-mile international derby at the Sheepshead Bay Velodrome.

With Bobby Walthour, Menus Bedell and Georges Seres, the Belgian star will have a trio of sensational riders to beat.

Harvard Plays Princeton Nine Next Saturday

The smokeless Harvard baseball team has its work all cut out for this week. The Crimson nine is scheduled to battle Holy Cross at Soldiers' Field on Wednesday and on Saturday next will play the first game of a three-game series with the Tigers of Princeton.

A week ago last Saturday Eddie Mahan beat Holy Cross at Worcester, but as Mahan will be worked in the Princeton game next Saturday Wilmot Whitney or Minnie Frye will trot against Holy Cross Wednesday. Although the present Holy Cross aggregation does not appear to be fast enough to be called a "regular" Purple and White team, it is a very fair outfit and possesses sufficient baseball ability to make things warm for the Crimson.

RED SOX BATTLE NAPS AGAIN

CLEVELAND, May 17.—Bill Carrigan and his band of Red Sox will give another exhibition of the grand old national pastime here today. Boss Bill's pennant chasers opened their series with the Cleveland Naps yesterday and grabbed off a 3 to 0 victory after fourteen thrilling innings of play.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Boston outfit. The visitors played sensational baseball and are evidently anxious to get out in the lead in the dear old American League pennant fight.

When the clubs in Johnson's circuit got away from the post in April, the Red Sox were a pennant favorite. The team, however, got off to a poor start and some of the wise men remarked that it would not be in the pennant fight this year.

Conditions have changed during the past week. The Red Sox have finally got going at their proper clip and are sweeping all before them here in the West.

The return of Joe Wood to form gives the Red Sox pennant stock a big boost. "Smoky Joe" pitched eleven innings against the Naps yesterday and was there with bells on.

Heinie Wagner also gave a grand account of himself here yesterday. He played well in the field while it was his extra base clout which sent over the winning tallies for the Red Sox in the final frame.

Carrigan is well fortified with hurlers for today's game. Ray Collins, Dutch Leonard and "Babe" Ruth are all anxious to face the Naps. Manager Birmingham is undecided whom he will work in the box today. He may use Joung Coumbe.

New Game for Tufts.

Tufts and Springfield will undoubtedly clash on the gridiron next season. The game, if arranged, will be played on Thanksgiving Day.

Harvard Won Dual Games with Yale, 53 to 51

NEW HAVEN, May 17.—The Yale Athletic Association has declared Harvard the winner of the dual track meet held here Saturday, by the score of 53 to 51.

Yale announced Harvard won through "a mere technicality" over the question of the eligibility of W. P. Roos, the shot-putter, and accordingly the five points made by Roos have been declared cancelled.

Women Barred from Bouts

KENOSHA, Wis., May 17.—Woman spectators will be barred from boxing bouts in Wisconsin in future. During a bout between local favorites, Mayor Schisler, of Kenosha, announced he had been informed by the State Boxing Commission that in future women will not be permitted to witness boxing exhibitions.

MAT MEN IN BIG $20,000 TOURNEY

NEW YORK, May 17.—Many countries will be represented in the international wrestling tournament which is scheduled to start at the Manhattan Opera House next Wednesday night and continue until the best man has been decided by the process of elimination bouts.

At least sixty grapplers are expected to start in the tourney, which will be conducted on a much larger scale than ever tried before in this country. The prize money will aggregate nearly $20,000 and incidental expenses of $10,000 more will make the effort to find the best wrestler in the world a costly undertaking.

The offer of $10,000 to the actual winner has attracted all the stars and already the names of well known mat artists are on the entry list, including Aberg, Lurich, Berner, Kervaras, Lelmer and Colosse. Aleksberg, the Russian, has offered $1,000 to any man who can throw him, and it is likely that Wilhelm Berner, the German champion, will be the first to try for this side money.

The men will wrestle in full length trunks and jerseys. This plan was carried out by Manager Samuel Rocanello in promoting similar tournaments in Europe, where the crowds held nearly as many women as men.

RITCHIE TELLS HOW HE HOPES TO WIN BACK WORLD'S TITLE

By JACK CONWAY.

Willie Ritchie, the American lightweight champion, who clashes with Matty Baldwin in a twelve-round bout before the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night, has made a decided hit with sporting lovers since he arrived in Boston Saturday. The Californian is a quiet, intelligent young man twenty-four years of age. He is one of the best-informed boxers that the writer has ever had the pleasure of meeting. He does not bear any marks of the ring and one would not believe that he was one of the world's most famous glove men if he were to meet the Prince Boy walking along Washington street decked out in a new Spring suit, the latest style straw hat and a nifty pair of low shoes.

Willie is posted on all of the important questions of the day and could probably hold his own in a debate with some of our wise men who admit that they know about everything which is worth while. Ritchie did not get a college education, but he was well schooled in the public institutions of San Francisco before he started to earn a livelihood by the power of his fists.

RITCHIE DISCUSSES PLANS.

We interviewed Ritchie shortly after he arrived in this man's town and he told us his plans for the future.

"Do you expect to win back the lightweight championship of the world?" we asked for a starter.

"The greatest ambition of my life is to defeat Freddy Welsh," replied Ritchie. "I lost a decision to Welsh in London last Summer and I am certain that I would be able to defeat him in a twenty-round contest at the present time.

"Welsh is a wonderful boxer, but he is getting along in years. He is twenty-nine years of age while I am only twenty-four. Welsh is also a boxer who relies upon his speed and skill in order to win his bouts. I am sure that I know how to defeat him. I met the champion in a ten-round bout in New York the year before and the newspaper experts awarded me the decision by a wide margin, but I kept forcing the fighting and had Welsh giving ground most of the time.

"In a twenty-round battle, I would be able to wear Welsh down, and would probably score with a knockout blow before the contest went the limit."

"Do you believe that you will defeat Matty Baldwin at the Atlas Club?" This was the next question which we shot at Ritchie.

CALIFORNIAN PRAISES BALDWIN.

"Baldwin is a wonderful little fellow," said Willie in a quiet, easy tone, as if thinking very deeply. "I have always admired Baldwin a great deal. When I was a youngster first learning how to box, Matty was exchanging blows with the leading 122-135 pound glove men in the world. He was never a champion, but was always a big card and he never failed to give satisfaction. He kept fighting at top speed all of the bouts and was able to defeat some of the greatest lightweights of recent years.

"Baldwin is a veteran today, but one cannot afford to take liberties with him. He is a boxer with a million-dollar head. He has forgotten more about the art of self defense that the average glove wielder knows. He does not look like a wonderful boxer as he is very aggressive, but the Charlestown veteran is master of more ring tricks than almost any lightweight in the world.

"I am in a position to know Baldwin's ability as he and Welsh are the only men who have received decisions over me. I met Baldwin in a twenty-round contest in California in the Summer of 1911. I had been boxing in fine form for months and my friends insisted that I engage in a twenty-round affair. I consented to battle Baldwin and Baldwin was selected as my opponent.

MATTY WON DECISION.

"I thought I knew a great deal about boxing at that time, but I was but a child in Baldwin's hands and he beat me all the way. Conditions, of course, have changed since then. I doubt whether Baldwin has improved any, while I believe I can state that I now know more about boxing than the majority of the men in my class. Therefore, I believe I will win from Baldwin, but I will be forced to keep fighting at top speed all of the time in order to finish in front."

"Charley White would have a good chance of defeating Welsh in a twenty-round contest," we ventured.

"White is a good boxer," declared Ritchie, "but I do not fear him. I fought the Chicago boxer in Milwaukee over a year ago. He hit me all but knocked out in the first round. He landed a terrible left hook on my jaw and I was in a dazed condition for the greater part of the bout. If White had followed up his advantage in the opening session, he could have knocked me out. Charley, however, is not aggressive and he gave me time in which to recuperate from the effects of his blow.

"White would not have a chance to beat Welsh in a ten or twelve-round contest as the champion would prove too fast for him. Conditions would be different in a twenty-round battle where Welsh might tire, in which case, White would be in a position to score with one of his famous dreams smashes.

"If I were to fight White again, I would be able to stand against his left hook and would probably win by a comfortable margin."

HARVARD CREW RACES CORNELL

Harvard's varsity crew leaves Cambridge Wednesday afternoon for Ithaca, New York, where "Pa" Courtney's Cornell eight is to be met next Saturday over the Henley distance. Accompanying the varsity oarsmen will be the Freshmen crew which will meet Cornell 1918.

Saturday's race between the regulars is to be the feature event of Spring Day at Ithaca. The big race will start about 4.30 and will be preceded by the freshies event.

The second Crimson eight will compete also next Saturday, being entered into the American Henley on the Schuylkill River. The boys will leave Cambridge on Thursday en route for Philadelphia and will probably be accompanied by the Sophomore Class crew eight, who earned the right to make the trip by defeating the Yale champion class crew last Saturday.

Harvard's varsity crew, in the light of Cornell's week showing in its race last Saturday against Yale and Princeton, will very likely start the race as the favorite. The Crimson regulars have been rowing in the same order for a month and are now seated handily defeated Annapolis during the Spring recess.

The weakest points in the Harvard eight are at No. 7 and No. 3. Cabot at 7 came up from the 1917 crew and does not measure in physical value with the men between whom he is placed. He stands but a feet 10½ inches, while Lund, at stroke, and Parson, at 6, are both a couple of inches over 6 feet. Naturally Cabot is at a disadvantage in an effort to order to get an even stroke with the rest of the crew the catch and finish of the oars must be somewhat short, which may not tell on him at present, but is sure to make itself felt in a longer row.

STEBBINS MUCH IMPROVED.

Stebbins, aside from his Freshman experience, was pretty crude material when Wray first put him in at No. 3, but day by day he has come along and should his improvement continue he should be a big factor in the race.

Wray has apparently followed suggestions from Alumni advisers this Spring for he has kept his men pretty closely limited to some all together. The stroke the crew has been rowing has been highly satisfactory. It is a smooth, fluid one, peculiarly characteristic of Wray's crew, and hard. The stroke has set a good rhythm in the shell which is followed splendidly by the men behind him.

MURRAY IDEAL LEADER.

Captain Harry Murray is rowing in good form this Spring and is proving the ideal type of leader. Morgan and Tarpon are showing winning qualities already, rolling oars as well but a minor fault on two and working handily. The crew has been rowing at a low stroke nearly all season, but getting every ounce of available strength behind its strokes.

FLYNN SEEKING COFFEY BOUT

NEW YORK, May 17.—I want to say just one word regarding Bill Gibson's challenge and offer of $2,000 upon behalf of Jim Coffey's condition that he be given a match with Jess Willard," writes Jack Curley, "Jim Coffey must and does not consider Flynn before his claim is given serious consideration.

"Coffey did everything in the world to get secret bout with Jess Willard but when they last met Flynn was winning and Coffey knew it and to prevent committed every foul on the calendar. He was barred at the show with nineteen rounds and got away with everything short of downright homicide.

"Coffey has signed a contract to box ten rounds in Dec. at the Boston Boxing club and if he does not defeat Flynn there he will not be entitled to any consideration whatever."

A., and Hall, of the Worcester Boys' club, who are said to be the best quarter-milers in the state.

"THE GODDESS" By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

TO rescue the girl who called herself Celestia from Professor Stilliter had been the work of instants and an impulse. But what to do next was not to be decided without plenty of reflection. Reflection did not come easily to Tommy, however, especially in the present circumstances. For any train of logical thought upon which he tried to get started was soon interrupted, either by a stolen look at his companion, the necessity of helping her past some rough place, or by some naive question or other which she would ask from time to time.

He could not make her out at all to his satisfaction. At one moment she seemed perfectly sane, at the next completely mad. The only things of which he felt certain were that she was beautiful and good, and that she was suffering from some form of amnesia by which her powers of memory had been undermined.

"How long have you known that man?" he asked, referring, of course, to Professor Stilliter.

"Not so long as I have known you, but sometimes I feel as if I had seen you both before. But I can't ever have seen you, can I? You can't ever have been in heaven and I've never been on earth."

"If you were seeing him for the first time, why were you afraid of him?"

"For the same reason that I'm not afraid of you."

"And you're not—not a bit?"

"He," she said simply, "is bad and ugly. You are good and beautiful."

As Tommy guided her through the woods toward his camping ground of the preceding night, he kept saying to himself: "But there's got to be a show-down soon. What am I to do about her?"

He almost wished that he had not taken her away from Stilliter, but had instead stayed with them, dogged their footsteps from place to place until he was sure that the girl was in no real danger from the psychologist. Indeed, he was in a state of great mental perplexity, and at the same time there was a novel and romantic quality to the episode that he could not but enjoy.

"If only," he thought, "I might play around with her for the rest of the day and then turn her over to her proper guardians and have no further responsibility, I'd ask nothing better."

They came to a little lake. Before Tommy could prevent Celestia had stepped upon the surface, as if upon a solid pavement, and gone in above the knee.

She gave a little cry of amused astonishment.

She Can Speak Several Languages

"Why it's"—she cried.

"Yes," said Tommy, "it's wet water. You appeared to think it was a boardwalk. But never mind, you'll soon dry out. Don't they have water in heaven?"

Celestia stepped into the water and went in above her knees

"Of course, but not black and still like that. In heaven it's all alive with rainbows in it."

"They speak English in heaven?"

"Oh, yes, and French and Italian and Spanish and German and American and all the others."

"Can you speak them all?"

"Of course. What good could I do on earth if I couldn't talk to people?"

"Just what good are you going to do?"

"I'm going to tell people to be better and not so foolish, and they are to do as I tell them."

"That's a splendid idea," said Tommy, feeling that it was best to humor her, "and then what?"

"Then? Why, when I've made everybody rich and happy I'll go back to heaven, of course, and be happy, too."

"Are you unhappy now?"

"No; not unhappy, but if I were back in heaven I wouldn't be all wet and muddy and hungry and thirsty, would I?"

"Of course you wouldn't, you poor child," said Tommy, "but soon we'll be at my camp, and then I'll hustle around and make you comfortable."

"And I feel as if my face were on fire, too," she complained.

"Feverish," thought Tommy, with dismay. And then he said:

"Stand still a moment and let me look."

He noticed for the first time the extraordinary whiteness and delicacy of her skin. It was as if she had always been veiled from the sun.

"You're getting sunburnt," he said, with concern. "That's what's the matter."

"Oh, the sun!" she cried. "The sun! Do show it to me! I've heard so much about it."

"Isn't there any in heaven?"

"How you talk; why, heaven is so far off."

"Well," said Tommy, pointing, "that's it."

"That?" exclaimed Celestia—but she could not look the sun in the face for more than a fraction of a second.

"That!" and she burst into laughter.

"Do you know what I thought that was?" she said.

"What?"

"Why, I thought, of course, that that was the gate to hell. And so that's the sun, and it's burning my face?"

She touched her face with her fingers and then looked at their tips as if expecting that the burn had come off on them.

"I've got some stuff at my camp that will take the burn out," said Tommy. "Look out for that green stuff. It's got thorns, and you can't afford to tear that dress."

Celestia Tires with Walking

They had begun to climb the eminence on which Tommy's camp was perched, and with every step Celestia showed increasing fatigue. He walked a little behind and at one side, now helping her forward and upward with an occasional touch of the hand between her shoulders and now with steadily maintained pressure.

"Of course, I'm not used to walking," she said; "I'm sorry. I suppose I'll get 'used to it."

Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN

(Copyrighted, Associated Newspapers, Ltd., all rights reserved. U. S. A. text by International News Service.)

FOR the life of him he could get no further. He nibbled the end of his penholder, and drew grotesque faces and figures on the blotting paper, then he commenced to decorate the neat heading of the notepaper bearing the words, "Orjad Club, St. James street, S. W."

No, it was no good; he must give it up. What he wanted to say could not be expressed in conventional written words. He must see Zoe and speak to her. Besides, it would hardly be sane to commit himself to writing now. Between two people like Brooke and his wife, who knew that the correspondence of either was sacred? Brooke might open his letter. And then—— No, the risk was too great. He must wait until he saw her. They were bound to meet soon. He was a little frightened of himself when he realized how very much he really wanted to see her again.

HE SETS OF TO SEE EVA WARREN

He tore up the sheet of notepaper, replaced her letter and chess in his letter-case standard, drank himself for the ordeal, set off for the Warrens' house in Curzon street.

It was quite an unconventional hour for calling, but Noel Crawley was quite on familiar terms with Warrens' electric ferdanlette stood outside the door, but he was disappointed to find that Eva was not at home.

"Miss Eva went out early this morning, sir," said the neat parlormaid who answered his summons, "her ladyship is in the morning room."

Crawley was not altogether anxious to see Lady Warren, especially as she would in all probability insist on his accompanying her in the motor. However, he had no choice but to enter.

He found Lady Warren attired for shopping. She was giving some directions to the butler concerning a luncheon party she was giving later in the day. She was delighted to see Crawley, and seized both his hands effusively.

"Ah, my dear Noel, I am glad to see you! What a delightful surprise! Why, we were picturing you enjoying yourself in Paris, and envying you. We thought of you last night, you rang. And what a result crossing it was, according to the papers this morning! But what do I mean?"

"It means," answered Crawley, "that the last money I found I should have to postpone my journey."

"Then why didn't you come in last night? Poor Eva would be quite inconsolable."

"I had an important business appointment," said Crawley a little awkwardly.

"Oh, you men with your business appointments! You don't suppose that we women wallow all of time, do you?" She shook her head coyly. "Oh no, Noel; we women are——" quite such beasts as you men would have us believe and make yourselves believe."

Lady Warren was one of those women who always spoke of "we women" and "you men." She was an impulsive, good-natured creature, very affected and very foolish, and either liked her acquaintances and was her slave, or equally disliked her and avoided her. There was no middle course.

Crawley was sorry to admit that at least he often found himself bored by Lady Warren irritated him beyond endurance. She gushed, and he hated gushing women. She was appallingly ignorant, and insisted on talking of things about which she knew nothing. Also she imagined she could sing, and insisted on inflicting cadenzas and shrill, endless trills upon him on every available occasion.

Her best friend and her worst enemy summed her up as "so absolutely good-natured." But Crawley absolutely good-natured people. Lady Warren was, in his opinion, the apotheosis of the class.

In her appearance she was loud without being exactly vulgar. She was the daughter of a well-to-do man, the mother of Eva. In her time she had been pretty, and she was still fair from being passee, and looked, without any very pronounced artifice, much younger than her forty years.

Her hair was golden; her eyes were blue. There was no line around her eyes, no superfluity of flesh beneath her chin. She was perfectly her figure within bounds, and was, if not exactly as willowy as she had been when Sir Squire Dhen Mr. Sydney Warren had married her, certainly not plump.

"How is Eva?" asked Crawley with some embarrassment. He always felt embarrassed with Lady Warren. She adopted a caressing manner with him, and always gave him the impression that she was going to kiss him.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's relentless enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They act on the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

A MAN AND HIS WIFE

John Thinks Isabel Can Get an Evening Dress for Thirty Dollars

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

CHAPTER XLVII.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

"I NEED some money for new clothes, John."

The remark was made so calmly that at first John Hamilton did not take in the full significance of it. When he did, he stopped short in the door. He was just ready for his afternoon stroll.

"Why," he said in surprise, "I gave you ten dollars only the other day for some clothes."

"Ten dollars did not get one-quarter of what I need," she informed him. "I used it to buy certain materials with which to make over two of my last year's gowns. I did the making over myself. The things look fairly well for mornings and afternoons. But I want a pretty evening gown that I can wear now and along into the Summer."

"Haven't you saved any money from your housekeeping allowance?"

She laughed in what seemed like genuine amusement. "Oh, John, how funny you are!" she exclaimed. "You talk about my very insufficient allowance as if it was a fortune. No, I have not saved a penny of it. Our expenses are more than ever, as you know, and I have never——"

She checked herself abruptly.

"Never what?" John asked.

"Nothing," she replied. She had been on the point of reminding him that she had never been paid the money she had let him have for his insurance. She was thankful that she had repressed the unconscious speech before it passed her lips. For a moment she was shocked to think that she had come near reminding John of a favor she had done him. She must be learning to care very little for him if she could so far forget the instants that she had believed were a part of herself. Then she remembered the luncheon at Sherry's and the glimpse she had had of the couple in the taxicab, and she hardened her heart.

"I am not extravagant, John," she said.

"You spend quite a bit on clothes, don't you think?" he ventured.

"You do not know what other women spend on dress," she asserted. Then, without the quiver of an eyelash, she added: "If I were one of the women who go to luncheon at swell places—at Sherry's, for instance—I would have to dress much better than I do now."

She knew the shaft went home, for he sent a quick flinch. But as he was sure that she was ignorant of his recent luncheon at Sherry's, he met her gaze frankly. "That may be true," he said, "but we cannot afford that sort of thing. We have to economize, you know."

JOHN TRIES HARD TO IGNORE INFERENCE

"I once heard it said that economy is doing without what you want now on the chance that you may some day need something that you won't care much for," she remarked. "I thought of that the other day when I was tired and walked uptown through the park instead of taking a taxi as lots of other women do."

The words were uttered innocently, and she did not glance at her husband. He was silent, and she spoke again: "As to that evening gown I was talking of, I would like to get it soon. Ida Ferris is going to give a musicale evening in a little while, and I must have it then."

"When is the musicale to be?"

She named the date.

"Well," he announced with a visible effort to speak lightly, "We shall be gay that week, shan't we? Mrs. Simmons is planning some kind of a dance about that time—the night following the Ferris party in fact. You will, of course, want your new gown for that function, too."

"Yes, if I go," Isabel said quickly. For a moment she forgot her new role of indifference, and the answer was the result of the old and familiar pang of jealousy.

"If you go?" John repeated. "Of course you will go—won't you?"

Before she replied she conquered her sudden indiscretion and again assumed her placid exterior. "Oh, yes, I suppose I shall go," she said, "always supposing, naturally, that you can accompany me to Ida's musicale."

He flushed scarlet. "You know, dear," he said, "that I will try to do so. At all events, I can arrange to come up late—if I don't get off in time to accompany you there. The truth is"—with a mighty effort to be frank—"I promised Adelaide that I would help her fix up her rooms that night. She is going to have quite an elaborate affair, and Dennis and I promised to help her clear the drawing rooms for dancing, move the piano, etc. As we are both busy in the day time, we will have to do it the night before the party. But I will try to get through early enough to come home and dress and get up to the Ferrises for you before you start for home. Won't that do?"

"I suppose it will have to do," Isabel said coldly. "And now—what about my new gown? Can you give me the money for it?"

"I'm afraid not," John replied hesitatingly. "But why not get it at one of the shops where you want to open a charge account? Then I will not have to pay for it until next month."

HE THINKS SHE CAN GET A GOWN FOR $30

"All right!" Isabel's face brightened. "Thank you, John."

"But don't get a gown that costs more than twenty-five or thirty dollars, will you?" he paused to add as he reached the door.

"Oh, John!" she gasped, "I can't get a really handsome gown for that! You ought to know that I can't."

"Why ought I to know?" he queried, his brow clouding. "Come, Isabel, do be sensible! You never used to be like this. You were always ready and willing to economize."

Still she did not withdraw her assertion. "I can't get a dress such as I want for that price," she insisted. "Still, I will do the best I can and keep as near that as possible. And, John," as he turned toward the door, "when you are tempted again to say that I have changed, stop a moment—just long enough to see if you haven't changed, too—won't you?"

He spoke impulsively. "I don't seem to be able to please you lately," he said. "I know some things I have done worried you—such, for instance, as drinking. I knew that worried you, and I have stopped it, Isabel. Really, I have."

"I don't doubt it, John," she said gravely. "But there are other things besides drink that a man may give up."

He started to speak again, then seeing her pick up a book as if to end the discussion, he went quietly from the room.

(To be continued.)

Both Were Afraid

The proprietor of the wild beast show recently made an offer of a silver medal to any local barber with sufficient courage to shave the tamer in the lion's den.

A knight of the razor, yearning for fame and glory, accepted the challenge, and, amid a chorus of cheers entered the cage.

Although the lion betrayed very little interest in the proceedings, the barber was obviously nervous, and having lathered his man, made several jerky dabs at one cheek with the razor, keeping a weather eye on the wild beast.

"Hold hard!" yelled the tamer, at last, as he felt a fearful gash. "It's too risky."

"I-I ain't afraid," stammered the shaking tonsorial artist. "There ain't a lion I-living can scare me."

"Course you ain't afraid," bellowed the tamer, as he wiped his wounded face. "Anybody can see you ain't. It's me who's afraid. I-I'm afraid of the barber."

The Peerless Powder in the Perfect Package

The Tetlow Box has a telescoping cover and is fitted with an inner container from which the powder may be poured into the puff-box without spilling. This container also keeps the powder clean and dry and conserves its perfume. The superiority of was positively established in 1876, when the judges of the Centennial Exposition awarded highest honors to the Henry Tetlow preparations, stating "that for purity of material, delicateness of effect and harmlessness to the skin, they are superior to any exhibited by the world."

Today, Henry Tetlow's Face Powder is widely used in Europe in preference to French powders. Henry Tetlow's Gossamer is made in White, Flesh, Pink, Cream and Brunette tints.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened stronger, and first sales in American Can, Steel, and quotations indicated that the rally on Saturday was due to more than covering of shorts, but on actual buying of much more bullish. The safe arrival at Greenock, Scotland, of the steamship Transylvania relieved deep anxiety. There was a better tone to the London market, while American cars had more support. A number showed gains early in the afternoon. Among issues to move up on orders in New York were Lehigh Valley, U. S. Steel, "War order" stocks were strongest as a group.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The Impossible Streets of Boston

Not in many years have the streets of Boston been in their present state of filth and disrepair. They are a disgrace to the city, a menace to our health and business.

Their condition was bad enough during the Winter, but as the Summer vacation season approaches and as conditions in Europe make it possible for Boston to draw unusual numbers of travelers, it is a costly piece of stupidity to allow our streets to be in such a state as to disgust the visitor with our city and to turn away someone who might locate either his family or his business in this community.

No time ought to be lost by the Mayor and the city government in putting our streets in better repair and in cleaning them.

There is also a practice on the part of abutters of cleaning dry sidewalks at a time in the morning when people are going to and from their business. The Street Department also cleans the dry streets at this hour, and all that results from it is raising a cloud of germ laden dust into the eyes and ears, noses and mouths of the people and allowing it to settle back again into the street, where the same process must be repeated.

We do not realize how many of our colds come from dust. The month of March was one of the sunniest on record. The air was clear and dry. All conditions pointed to a healthy season, but the winds were high, the streets were dusty and the dust filled our noses and mouths and probably there never was a month in which we suffered so severely from colds.

There ought to be an ordinance forbidding the cleaning of sidewalks until they have been wet down so that the dust is laid. The city employes ought not to be allowed to sweep dry, dusty streets.

The city is dusty enough under the best possible conditions. We ought not, carelessly or deliberately, to make it worse.

The Day Is Near When Every Armory and Every School House Will Be Used for the Good of the Community

Six years ago the AMERICAN called public attention to the extraordinary waste of capital involved in the limited use of our magnificent public school buildings and armories. Then this newspaper suggested that the public schools and armories should be thrown open to other public uses which were not inconsistent with their primary purpose. The AMERICAN also suggested that there were numerous community activities which could centre in these great public structures.

This idea first met with the inertia which retards all new things. But now the experiment is under way. Last year there were seven evening centres of Boston housed in the school buildings under the general direction of Mrs. E. W. White. Last week the close of this season's experiment was celebrated by a dance at the Girls' Latin School, attended by 1,800 people from these seven districts.

The experiment has been successful, very successful. The local improvement associations have identified themselves with these evening centres. Local organizations of purely social character have accepted the hospitality of these school buildings and social clubs have sprung up to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the opening of these buildings. Such organizations have been self-supporting and have been self-instructing in many cases.

Mothers' clubs have been formed to supplement mothers' clubs already existing and they have provided Christmas trees and entertainments for the children of the district. Dances, chorus, orchestras, bands and dramatic clubs have sprung up under the stimulus of this splendid experiment. Seven orchestras are the outgrowth of the new departure and three large neighborhood choruses. Eleven plays have been rehearsed and produced. Debating societies and even a monthly newspaper are among its products.

The new mothers' clubs which have come into existence in these centres comprise about 1,200 women. They have taken a great interest in the social activities of the district, in its work for charity and in the discussions which touch the local interests.

Those who have watched the movement, including the Mayor, the School Committee and the Superintendent of Schools, all believe that it should not only be continued but that its scope should be widened and the number of centres doubled this year.

Surely they are right. Everything that increases co-operation among our citizens increases the efficiency of our government; everything that increases our neighborliness increases the benefits which we received from organized society.

The AMERICAN is proud indeed that its pioneer suggestion should have borne so much good fruit. Even the armories are now being utilized more nearly to their capacity, and the day is near when every armory and every schoolhouse will be constructed for the general use of the community.

Petty Jealousy One of Worst Common Faults

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

WHATEVER your profession or occupation, cultivate a spirit large enough to make room for others in your wide line of endeavor. Nothing is so belittling to the human mind as petty jealousy. You will resent the inference, of course, that you can be guilty of petty jealousy. You will think your tendency of criticism of others is merely the power to "discriminate," and that the ridicule you heap upon your competitors and competitors arises from a "keen sense of humor."

But when your competitors turn these same weapons upon you the situation seems altered. You call it jealousy and petty carping criticism. If you are a poet, an author, an artist, a musician or an actor, look for things to praise in those who are striving for the same goals which you are seeking.

So surely as you cultivate this quality of seeking for the good and the admirable in others, so surely will the good and the admirable develop in your own nature. Your work will improve, your capabilities increase, generosity in thought brings generosity in judgment from the world at large.

Mean, paltry, petty thoughts and impulses create a corresponding condition in one's environment. So, even from a selfish standpoint, it pays to be big and broad and generous minded. It does not matter if those whose work you appreciate and praise repay you with criticism and ridicule. Others will repay you in your own pure gold coin as you pass along.

Nothing matters in this life so much as the weeding out of everything mean and the developing of everything noble and great. So surely as you reach this consciousness and proceed along this mental course you will be actuated by the infallible Helpers, and given new power to achieve.

It is not expected that you should find everything in the work of your rivals admirable and worthy of encomiums. In all human endeavor we find good, better and best, poor, bad and worst work. But you can pass lightly over the latter trio, passing only to encourage the workers to better endeavor or to turn their attention to other employment wherein there is greater hope of their succeeding; and you can give the force of your thought to the good, better and best.

If you are a mother, teach your children to look for some good thing in every one they meet, and for some happy event in every day, and to speak of these things before they sleep.

There is no greater kindness you can show your offspring than to train them in this mental habit.

Begin when they are first able to talk, and keep at the effort until they are firmly established in the happy method of finding life a picture book with a bright spot on every page.

Even your grown-up children may be directed by you in this manner. Instead of complaining about your life of your inability to do what you wish for them begin to talk of your blessings and of their blessings.

When they are inclined to find fault with destiny, try to divert their minds with some amusing notion until you are them laugh. Then remind them that it is a great blessing to be able to laugh.

It is a wonderful thought, this mighty influence of a mother.

The persistent belief of a mother in the ability of her child to accomplish great things has helped many a poor man and woman to overcome the worst possible surroundings and to rise above seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

God, the Great Designer, leaves His work on humanity for mothers to finish. Just in the degree that mothers improve in their skill will the race improve.

"Government by Ghosts Is Passing" is the title of the article by Mr. Elbert Hubbard which will be printed on this page tomorrow. This is one of the articles which were prepared for the American by Mr. Hubbard prior to his departure for Europe, to be used during his absence. Added interest no doubt attaches to them owing to their author's tragic death.

What Do You Think of This Grandmother?

Here, Reproduced from Harper's Bazar, Is the Best Argument in America for Big Families

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

Mrs. George J. Gould, her latest photograph by Marceau.

It will interest American women to look at this picture and think about it.

Mrs. Gould is the mother of seven children. They are all alive, all remarkably healthy and strong. One of her boys is the world's champion in a game requiring extraordinary physical and moral force and unlimited endurance. He is Jay Gould.

Another one of her boys, Kingdon Gould, is a first-class champion in another kind of work—Wall Street—also requiring a great deal of nervous force and endurance.

This isn't an old picture of Mrs. Gould, the mother of seven children and the grandmother of a good many other children. It isn't a picture taken years ago, but a picture taken within a few weeks.

It is published in Harper's Bazar for May and reproduced here by permission.

It shows, for the benefit of our readers, the very latest of fashions in gown and hat.

What is more important, it shows that an American woman can be the mother of seven fine children and the grandmother of others and still look as young and handsome as she looked before the first child arrived.

There was never a better advertisement for a big family or a better tribute to the quality of American womanhood than this particular photograph.
